Dilation of the Stomach.

not be overestimated. One of the principal causes that produce this distressed concition is inordinate eating and drinking. Weakness of the muscles that propel the food to the intestines is also a factor in allowing the food to accumulate in the stomach, and thus stretching it to enormous size. Constipation and inactivity of the liver is also a prominent

In this condition you usually find a coated tongue, thirst, loss of appetite, emaciation, oppression at the pit of the stomach, belching of fetid gas and vomiting of sour liquid, varying in amount. Weakness, paleness and want of energy are usually pres

Now, to overcome this distressing and dangerous enlargement of the stomach and all its symptoms, trke Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills today. They will give tone to the weak propelling muscles of the stomach and intestines. They produce a natural movement of the contents of the bowels and avoid the formation of gas, which if retained produces symptoms of self-poisoning. Food long retained in the stomach and matter in the bowels show all the signs of putrefaction, when examined after the stomach pump is used, viz., sour odor, bacteria, yeast, saccharine and organic acid, which are deleterious to the entire system.

Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills cure con stipation as if by magic. They regulate the func-tions of the liver, cleanse the poisons from the blood, remove the billous elements from the circulation and strengthen the nerves. If your eyes are clouded without an appreciable cause, if you have specks and floating objects before your vision, use Sn.ith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills and get the poisonous elements out of your blood. THANKS FOR FILIPINOS.

From Mr. Fergusson.

Commissioner Marfarland today received from A. W. Fergusson, executive secretary for the Philippine Islands, a letter thanking the Commissioners and the citizens for their courtesies extended to the delegations of prominent Filipinos during their recent visit in Washington. The communication addressed to Mr. Macfarland, follows: "I take great pleasure in extending to you and the members of your honorable board, on behalf of the government of the Philippine Islands and of the honorary board of commissioners to the St. Louis exposition, our most sincere acknowledgments and thanks for the courtesies extended by you all-too-short stay at the nation's capital. "Every member of the commission will long remember the kindly and cordial words of welcome which you addressed them on the occasion of the reception in the Corcoran Gallery of Art and the hospital-ity of the citizens of the capital city."

Noted American Physician Dead.

A dispatch from Chicago last night says: Dr. Nathan Smith Davis, one of the most prominent physicians in America, died here today at the age of eighty-seven years. He was in good health and in active practice of his profession almost up to the time of his death. Dr. Davis was president of the international medical congress of 1887, and was six years editor of the Jour-nal of the American Medical Association As dean of the faculty of Northwestern University, as a professor in Rush Medical College and as one of the staff of Mercy Hospital for forty years, Dr. Davis had a career of remarkable activity and success, augumented by the high respect which he commanded aside from his work as a physician. His best-known writings were in regard to the physiological effects of al-

CLOSING EXERCISES OF THE DELEGATES REYBURN AND COOK OVERHAULING VESSELS AT ARMSTRONG SCHOOL

Those Conditioned Are to Undergo Fifty-One Graduates Given Diplomas -Engineers' Licenses Granted-Certificates of Merit.

> The third annual commencement exercises of the Armstrong Manual Training School were held in the auditorium of the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church last night. Diplomas were presented to the graduating class of twenty-six young women and twentyfive young men, and in addition certificates were given to twelve other students who had completed a special course.

Besides the graduating class the three District Commissioners, seven members of the board of education, W. S. Montgomery, superintendent of the schools, the two assistant superintendents, John A. Chamberlain, director of manual training schools; Dr. John Gordon, president of Howard University; Dr. Fardon and Dr. Wilson B. Evans, principal of the school, occupied seats on the platform. Potted palms were scattered about in abundance and the school colors, blue and yellow, were everywhere in evidence Instrumental music was furnished by the Columbian Orchestra, and vocal selections were given by the Armstrong Choral So-ciety, under the leadership of Miss Harriet Gibbs, assistant director of music in the public schools. James F. Bundy presided during the evening and the invoca-tion was made by Rev. Sterling N. Brown. The diplomas were presented to the grad uates by Commissioner Macfarland, who also made an address. The address to the students was made by Archibald H.

Grimke of Boston. An interesting feature of the exercises was that each of the young women wore a gown designed and made by herself as a part of her school work. The gowns, while apparently expensive were not so, inasmuch as the highest cost of material in any of them did not exceed $6-the added value being the result of the handiwork of the Another notable feature was the presentation of engineers' licenses to four of the special students of the school; they were issued by the board of steam en-

Mr. Macfarland's Address.

Commissioner Macfarland spoke of the value of school training as a part of edu-

"The value of the school," he said. "is now recognized by all, and its building will have to be enlarged to meet the growing demands upon it. No one, whatever he may think of other forms of education, can doubt the necessity which this school meets for the training by technical study and practice of the brain and hand.
"The Armstrong graduates have the special opportunity and responsibility of helping forward their own people in the unrest ing march of civilization. While we are all Americans, under one flag, we cannot ignore the peculiar position of the colored race and the peculiar responsibilities of their trained leaders. They have the sympathy of all right-minded citizens in every effort to promote the progress which can only be secured by contributing their full share to the economic life of the whole country.

Mr. Grimke's remarks were full of advice to the young people. In part he said:
"Life is strife, and those who live have to strive. The dead only are quiet, are still on this battlefield. You are now en route to the seat of war, where your soldierly qualities will be speedily tested.

"The life which you are now beginning is no feast day. Far from it. It means work, persistent, determined work, such as men and women do who are received to see men and women do who are resolved to get what belongs to them and to keep it. If there is any royal road to success I have never heard of it, nor will you ever catch so much as a glimpse of it. The road leading to it is filled with dust and stones and thorns, over which you may have to walk breath catching in your throats. There is no such thing as sleeping anywhere along that route and reaching the end where fortune beckons."

Those Receiving Diplomas. Diplomas were given to the following:

Corine Gtey Brodie, Julia Ann Farley, Reiter Lucinda Thomas, Horace Gillespie Anderson, Ednest Reginald Amos, David Vernell Green, Roscoe I. Vaughn, John H. Wilson, Mary Alice Booker, Alice Virginia Coleman Cora Louise Euell, Georgiana Jones, Mary Gertrude Middleton, Mabel Scott, Cordella Catherine Spinks, Ada Marion Tucker, Stanton Bernard Bowie, Howard Malvin Clarke, Melvin Jenkins, Richard Francis Jones, Jabez Lee, William Mason, Henry Winfield Minor. The special students who received certificates were: Minnie Ferguson, Erma Louise Fleming, Catherine Roberta Fletcher, Lillian May Beatrice Johnson, Mary Milburn, Mary Magdeline Patterson, Matilda Susan Bell Smith, Sofourner Theresa Washington, Everett Brown, Samuel Ford, George E. Jessup and Louis Walter Roy. Engineers' licenses were given to Jeremiah A. Baltimore, Xavier Butler and Frederick White.

COMPLIMENTARY BARBECUE.

Mr. Darlington Extends Hospitality to His Southern Friends.

Mr. J. J. Darlington of this city has invited the Confederate Veterans' Association of Washington, and, through this organization, the members of Rouss Camp, U. C. V., the city chapters of the U. D. C., Southern Relief Society, Sons of Veterans and exconfederates generally to be his guests Tuesday next, the 21st instant, at his summer home near Herndon, Va. The party will leave the 6th street station at 8 a.m. Tuesday, returning that evening at 6 o'clock. It is understood that an old-fashioned barbecue will be one of the features of the day's entertainment, the visitors being in every respect guests of Mr. Darlington from their arrival to their de-

MEETING OF OLD BOYS. Plans for the Future to Be Made This Evening.

Arrangements have been made for a meeting of the Old Boys' Club to be held this evening in the Hotel Raleigh at 8 o'clock. The object of the meeting will be to effect a permanent organization and shape the course to be followed by the new organization. Only those who voted for either Fremont or Lincoln are eligible to become members. Ex-Governor Sydney Perham will be chairman and William 8 Odell secretary of the meeting.

Theatrical Men Organize.

A dispatch from Philadelphia last night says: Theatrical managers, proprietors and business representatives of Philadelphia today formed a permanent organization to be known as the Theatrical Managers' Protective Association, the object being the furtherance of the interests of the members, their protection and social advance-ment. This is the first of a number of similar associations to be organized in con-junction with the New York organization of the same character. Samuel F. Nixon of Nixon & Zimmerman was chosen president, Frank Howe, jr., of the Walnut street and Garrick theaters, vice president; I. Kauffman of the Forepaugh and New Girard avenue theaters, treasurer; Fred. G. Nixon-Nierdlinger of the Park and People's theaters, secretary.

TENDERED RECEPTION.

Old-Fashioned Barbecue at Which Col. Perry Carson Receives Unw stinted Praise.

The gentle summer breezes that stirred the slumbering trees in the vicinity of Eureka Park, Good Hope Hill, last night were laden with the savory smell of roasting oxen. The citizens sniffed the air and wondered. An old-fashioned barbecue was in progress, with the Blaine Invincible Colored Republican Club as host, and Dr. Robert Reyburn and John F. Cook, delegates from the District of Columbia to the national republican convention, as guests of honor. The occasion was a fitting send-off to the two gentlemen who prevailed in the recent election, and who leave for Chicago today or tomorrow. As is usual with all gatherings of the Blaine Club, Col. Perry H. Carson, the republican war horse, the "tall sycamore," was one of the most prominent figures.

Mr. Cook was unable to be present, but his colleague, Dr. Reyburn, sat upon the platform and in a brief address thanked his hosts for the reception. The roast was started early in the afternoon, and at 9:30 o'clock last evening it was ready to serve. By this time the guests and hosts were on hand, with a truly good appetite, and the meat left on the bones of the ox when the crowd dispersed would not have furnished a good meal for a bird.

Among those who addressed the merry-makers were John C. Dancy, recorder of deeds: former Representative George W. deeds; former Representative George W. White, E. M. Hulett, John M. Freeman, Howard Jackson and I. G. Grower. Howard Jackson and L. G. Gregory. L. H. Peterson, another speaker, launched a boom for Col. Carson as national committeeman for the District, which suggestion was received with prolonged enthusiasm. The barbecue lasted until about midnight, and the guests departed to the four winds singa parody complimenting Col. Carson to the tune of "The Star Spangled Banner." There was not one of the five hundred who did not say he had a good time.

Dr. Reyburn spoke in complimentary terms of Col. Carson and his services to his party in the District. Then he told the assemblage that he was going to Chicago to have the republicans insert a plank in the platform for the restoration of local govrnment in the District.

Recorder Dancy talked exclusively of Col. Carson, his courage, his genius and his popularity. He told how Carson had induced Col. Conger to leave the republican convention several years ago, when the two were delegates, to get a telegram which was supposed to be waiting for him. As a matter of fact, there was no telegram, and in the absence of Col. Conger, Perry Carson had himself made national committeeman. This tickled the guests greatly, and they applauded to the echo.

Mr. Peterson, when it came his turn to talk, went back over the history of Col. Carson, dwelling on his political sagacity and attendant success. He worked the audience up to an enthusiastic Carson mood, and then hurled the Carson boom for the national committee. He said that it would be an honor to Reyburn and Cook if they would name the "tall sycamore," and that was evidently the opinion of the rest of those present. Dr. Reyburn would not place himself on record, however. The Blaine Invincibles decided to await the news from Chicago.

It was 9:30 when finally the ox was done and ready to be served. At this eleventh hour there arose a quarrel. The chief roaster and the principal bread cutters, of whom there were twenty, disputed as to who should serve the barbecue. They shook one another and gesticulated at a great rate. Finally it was decided to call in Col. Carson as arbitrator. He settled the dispute by handing out the plates of ox meat with his own hands, and thus the guests were served.

LA FOLLETTE LOSES FIGHT.

National Committee Awards Convention Seats to "Stalwarts."

A dispatch from Chicago last night says: by unanimous vote the republican national committee late this afternoon decided to seat the delegates-at-large from Wisconsin, who are members of the so-called "stalwart" faction, headed by United States Senators Johin C. Spooner and Joseph V. Quarles and opposed to the republicans led by Gov. Robert M. La Follette. While the contest is partly settled, so far as the national convention is concerned, the dispute among the two parties of the badger state is by no means ended, as the Wisconsin courts are to be asked to determine which of the two conventions recently held in the state was legally the party convention and entitled to have the names of its nominees for state officers placed upon the official ballot under the regular party

After the national committee had decided against the supporters of the governor from Wisconsin, the leaders of Mr. La Follette's side announced their determination to carry the fight to the end, and it committeemen, that the dispute will again be fought out before the committee on cregentials in the national convention. The anti-La Follette men were equally determined to continue the contest, which has been exceedingly bitter. The Spooner adherents asserted that the first legal acside and would very likely be in the form of mandamus proceedings to compel the placing of their candidates, headed by Samuel A. Cook for governor, on the offi ctal ballot of the state, or else an action to prevent the representation of the La Follette ticket on the ballot.

Notes.

The committee affirmed the report of the subcommittee on the election of temporary officers for the convention. These will be Charles W. Johnson of Minneapolis. secretary; John P. Molloy of Ohio, first assistant secretary; Elihu Root, temporary chairman; William E. Stone, sergeant-atarms; David C. Owen, Milwaukee, first assistant sergeant-at-arms.

A large likeness of the late Marcus A. Hanna has been hung in the Coliseum. It is the only portrait that will greet the eyes of the delegates to the republican national convention. It measures 20 feet high and 17 feet wide.

Senator Fairbanks of Indiana arrived in Chicago today. He maintained silence on the subject of the vice presidency.

Pronunciations That Signified. From the Kansas City Journal.

Senator Stone of this state once made famous remark to the effect that the only way to "carve" a watermelon is to "bust 'er." He said, however, in a recent interview, that every state has its own peculiar way of doing things, and, among others, its own style of pronouncing words. "It is related," said the senator to a Des Moines Times reporter, "that when the first tide of New England settlers began to drift to Kansas, Missourians tied a cow at each crossing of the Missouri river. If the emi-grant said 'cow' he was permitted to cross, but if he pronounced it 'keow' he was told to return to the east, because the natives were satisfied he was an evil-minded abolitionist. The Kansas people evened up by tying a bear on their side of the river, and if the emigrant said bear he was given the right hand of fellowship, but if he pro-nounced it 'bar' he was given an hour to get back to Missouri, because he was an advocate of slavery."

Grant and Lee at Appomattox. From the Vicksburg (Miss.) Herald.

In all the world's annals of heroic episodes there is nothing to excel the majestic grandeur of Lee, rising superior to adversity and defeat at Appomattox. It was the fitting capstone to a great career. And yet the commanding presence towers but little in the imagination above the grandeur of Grant's simplicity and unostentation when putting on the crown of a great victory.
All things considered, measured by the influences of birth, training and associations of the two, his trial and test was as severe, and he came out of it with as little tarnish of demeanor and bearing as his great and illustrious adversary. Altogether, the scene is a theme to be dwelt upon as the highest pinnacle of the excellence and superiority of American citizenship and character. It is one which may safely challenge comparison from all the nations of all the arms.

THE STORY OF

A PERSONAL WORD BY THOMAS W. LAWSON AND A STATEMENT BY THE PUBLISHERS OF

Gverybody's Magazine

The Personal Word by Mr. Lawson

Personally I know that one hundred millions of dollars were lost, thirty men committed suicide and twenty previously reputable citizens went to the penitentiary, directly because of Amalgamated. It was largely because of my efforts that the foundation of Amalgamated was successfully laid. It was created because of my work. It was because of what I stood for, because I had the public's confidence, and because my promises had been kept, that the plain people invested two hundred million dollars of their savings, and it was because of trickery and broken promises that the public lost the enormous sums they did. I have unwittingly been made the instrument by which thousands upon

My motives for writing the Story of Amalgamated are manifold: thousands of investors in America and Europe have been plundered. I wish them to know my position as to the past, that they may acquit me of intentional wrongdoing; as to the present, that they may know that I am doing all in my power to right the wrongs that have been committed; and as to the future, that they may see how I propose to com-THOMAS W. LAWSON.

A Statement by the Publishers of Everybody's Magazine

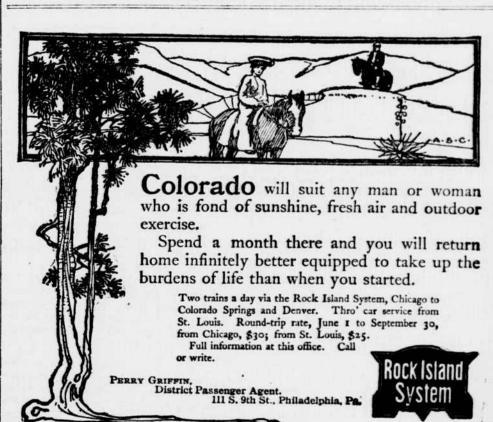

In the articles by Mr. Lawson, beginning in the July number, under the caption of "Frenzied Finance, the Story of Amalgamated," we have a narrative from Mr. Lawson's own lips, how, in the last few years, he has seen millions of dollars won without right, and thousands of men ruined. It is a story of financial tragedy of today.

In the great financial happenings of recent years story tellers have given their version; political economists their theories; reformers their pictures; and historians their tablets. For the first time in the history of High Finance we have the High Priest tell it as it happened, and it is for Everybody's Magazine to publish "the cold-blooded facts," for Mr. Lawson has pledged himself to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.
